

International Commercial Arbitration

In today's cross-border business environment, trial lawyers must be prepared to take their cases not only to court, but also to international arbitration panels in the United States and abroad. Drummond Woodsum attorneys represent clients in commercial disputes before domestic and international arbitration tribunals.

Whether the arbitration is in Canada, Europe, or elsewhere, we know how to guide our clients through the strategic complexities of these proceedings – which often differ significantly from traditional litigation – while controlling costs and achieving our clients' diverse business objectives.