Criminal investigations and charges often confront clients without warning. Most clients have never experienced the criminal justice system, and Drummond Woodsum attorneys are particularly sensitive to this fact. Our attorneys also recognize that even charges that may appear to be “minor” have the potential to affect future educational and employment opportunities, professional licensure, and standing in the community. Accordingly, we focus not only on the short-term resolution of the situation at hand, but the long-term impact on our client.
